WATER SCHEMES.

Since the soliciting committee started out for subscriptions to defray the expense of getting legal advice as to the mode of proceedure to obtain municipal water, a number of schemes have partially developed. Those interested in the Artesian Water company propose putting down two or large wells at a cost of $10,000 for the supply or 2,000 taps through the central city at $3 a tap-one-thir! the Consolidated's prices-which will bring them more than half the cost of the plant the first year. W. T. Morgan is at the head of a movement to sink a well at the head of Salem avenue for the supply of residents and business men of that thoroughfars, In this case it is proposed to have the consumers pay pro rata on the first cost and then have free water. The Consolidated is in for a lively time, whether municipal water is realized or Large Attendance at the Loan Exhibition-The Booths.

Thursday evening was the fourth night of the loan exhibition. A large crowd was in attendance, and the programme as rendered was well received by those present. There are thirteen booths in all. The curlo booth is in charge of Miss Jennie G. Benjamin, Mrs. E. J. Barthold, Mr. P. F. Connor W. L. Carr and Joe B. Reese, This booth contains many antique articles, and is the paradise of the curio hunter. At the sales booth may be found Mrs. J. B. Grover, Mrs. E. W. Roberts, Mrs. D. W. Hickey, Miss Lena Barnes, Miss Lillian Hicks and Mrs. H. P. Simpson. This booth contains fancy articles for sale. You should not miss calling at this booth before leaving the hall. The candy booth is conducted by Miss Alice Moon, Mrs. I. F. Hoyt, Miss Daisy Linder, Miss Myrtis Peck and Mrs. Arthur Thompson. Here the sweet tooth may be appeased, candies of all kinds greet the eye. The zoological booth is taken care of by Messrs. Leo Schimpff, F. P. Benjamin and E. J. Barthold. Stuffed animals and birds natural as life are here to be seen. The little folks linger about this booth the entire evening and seem to never tire looking upon the large collection shown, At the needlework, booth are Misses Emma Peck, Mamie Jones, Bertha Peck and Margaret Williams. The seautiful needlework exhibited here is admired by all. It is one of the prettiest booths in the hall. The oriental booth, under the management of Mrs. W. F. Mott. Miss Maude McHugh and Miss Mabel Moon, is the centre of attraction and in consequence the visitors at this pretty booth are many. Miss McHugh and Miss Mabel Moon, attired in Japanese costume, serve tea to all callers. The interior of this booth is purely of oriental design, large, beautiful curtains and rugs of oriental manufacture, with choice bric-a-brac, present to the eye a luxurious appearance. The mineral booth, with Messrs. W. L. Allen, E. S. Jones, F. P. Benjamin, D. W. Hickey, M. M. Hughes and Robert Burleigh in charge, is the booth that one likes to linger near, for here is gold and silver nuggets and specimens of ore that is valued at hundreds of dollars. Young Men's Supper at the M. E. Church a Grand Success-A Mine Party-Church and Other News.

'The annual bachelors' supper of the oung men of the Methodist Episcopal church was held Thursday evening in the parlors of the church and without reflecting any discredit on any of former events conducted by the bachelors' society last evening's event surpassed them all.

A large number of faithful members of the congregation were present and partook of the many good things prepared for them by the young men in charge. Three rows of tables were stretched diagonally through the parlors and were laden with all delicacies of the season. The tables were handsomely decorated with cut flowers and potted plants. The committee of gentlemen cannot be praised to highly for the able manner in which they looked after the most minute details pertaining to the success of the supper. A party composed of the following young people: Misses Annie Stevens, Stella Barrier, Jennie Davis and Flotta Barrier and Messrs. William Davis, Harry Barrier, Elmer Shirtz, John Engle and Walter Getz visited the interior of the Archbald mine on Thursday evening. The party was in honor of Mr. Engle, who is her from New York city. They were chaperoned by Mr. William Davis. An enjoyable time was had.

The following are requested to meet at the Palace hotel on Tuesday evening: Prof. D. E. Jones, W. G. Howells, Robert Llewellyn, James E. Watkins, esq., David D. Griffiths, William P. Griffiths, W. H. Thomas, D. Theopolies Davis, John J. Moore and M. J. McDonald.

Services at the M. E. church tomorrow will be held at the usual hours. There are several cabinets of them, and Pastor Rev. Francis Gendall will officiate. Preaching at 10.45 a. m. and 7 agricultural booth is in charge of o'clock. All are invited. The amount realized at the recent Messrs. Howard Brundage, Henry

It is high time that our chief of the fire department was investigating the fire alarm system and have it kept in better condition than at present. During Thursday evening's fire it took just a half hour before the gong would sound. If the fire proved to be in a dangerous place no doubt the structure would be destroyed during that half hour delay.

Some of our young men gave excellent service to our firemen while drawing the hose cart to the fire on Thursday night. Preaching at the usual hours at the Calvary Baptist church tomorrow, Pastor Rev. Dr. Harris officiating. The congregation of the First Con gregational church of North Taylor is making extensive arrangements for the grand entertainment to be held at the church on Nov. 10. The best of talent is being secured. The usual services will be held at the Welsh Congregational church tomorrow, Rev. Thomas officiating.

Mr. John G. Owens, formerly Judge & Company, has accepted a responsible position with the Clarke Brothers at Scranton. Mr. Thomas Patterson, of Avoca, THEATRICAL.

"THE LITTLE MINISTER."

There is a quality to the acting of Miss Maude Adams which has never been ade quately described in print and which we fear never will be so described, although one becomes conscious of it very soon after she appears upon the stage. The expression "exquisitely feminine" conveys mission, ten cents; supper, free. All rudely the idea; but it needs qualificaion and shading. There are other women upon the stage who impress us by their faithful delineations of the feminine sex; but nowhere in the list of actresser who have won eminence in the portrays. of the finer feminine roles can we recall one who presents such a spontaneity of seemingly unaffected emotions, so subtly shaded or so sweetly blended; or such a delicate and gracious sense of humor, hovering just on the borderland of wo manly sympathy and tears.

The "Lady Babble" of Miss Adams, as resented at the Lyceum last evening be fore the largest and most brilliant audience ever collected in a Scranton play-house (an audience, by the way, which had silks and diamonds in the top gallery) is, if there ever was one, a part taken from the page of fiction and made real and human beyond its author's dreams. Miss Adams' genius made it live so vividly and naturally that ere one was aware one was taking it as an actuality and entering into the spirit of the play as one would take concern in the doings of a dear relative or an intimate friend. It is trite to say that the triumph of art is to conceal art; the notable feature of Miss Adams' acting is that it does not allow you time to do much thinking about art one way or another; it just captures your opments of the play from the very first

The company in support of Miss Adams was more than efficient; It was exceptional. It would be a pleasure to dwell upon the merits of each performer did space permit: but the will must be taken for at rest. The pall-bearers were Mich- | the deed and the whole thing summed up

"Cumberland '61."

At the Academy of Music last evening the King Dramatic company presented for the first time in this city, Franklin Fyle's much-talked of war drama "Cum

Mr. Fyles is the gentleman who presides over the dramatic department of the New York Sun and who in this capacity daily bursts forth, like all dram-atic critics, against the unreality and forced methods of the modern playwright. Surely one would think here is an ideal person to fashion a real play.

But Mr. Fyles couldn't get away from the stock ideas of war drama, and "Cum-berland '61" is simply a melo-drama with all the familiar types, but dressed up in etter language and combining a certal dexterity in plot with some attempt at pulpit in the Congregational church character sketches. It was melo-drama blood and thunder melo-drama almost but good melo-drama.

There was the southern girl in love with the northern officer, the viliainous colonel, stage colonels in time of war are generally villains—the comedy lovers and all the other essentials of a war drama. The new type was the half-breed Indian cadet with the savage blood still lingering in him, who kills the father who de-nies that he is his son. This part was played by Kirk Brown, who though he nouthed terribly at times, was on the whole quite acceptable.

From an artistic standpoint the hit of the evening was made by Miss Rachel Barr, who assumed the role of a negro mammy with such fidelity that it was hard to imagine she was "blacked up Special mention should also be made of the work of Katherine Crego, Arthur Pickens, George H. Rowe and Frank Fey. The piece affords much opportunity for scente and spectacular effect which was not taken advantage of by the management, the only good effect being the burning bridge in the third act, which was fairly realistic. The company is to be congratulated, however, on being able to rise above the "Dad's Girl" or "Lost in New York" type of drama. This afterthe evening Hoyt's famous comedy "A Tin Soldier" will be the bill.

The Great Play "Zaza."

When David Belasco produced "The Heart of Maryland" 'the fact began to reveal itself that his was a master hand stagecraft, and his work as a dramaist began to assume an importance that made it of great value. "The Rising Generation."

One of the greatest hits in the line of Irish-American comedy of the present day is William Barry's popular production of "The Rising Generation," and local theater-goers who enjoy an evening of continual merriment and good humor will do wisely to witness its appearance at the Lyceum theater in this city on Tuesday evening, Oct. 31.

It is one of the most successful laughing comedies of the age and keeps the dience in one continual outburst laughter and applause throughout the evening. The scenic effects are very elaborate and many well known localities of the Metropolis are represented.

The cast includes some of the best known players on the stage. An entirely separate act is offered as a special fer ture, between acts two and three, by George Felix and Lydia Barry in Vaudeville Craze." These players no These players need no introduction to the public, as ever since their debut into the theatrical world they have met with popular favor throughout the entire country.

Gillete's New Play.

William Gillette's dramatization of A. conan Doyle's world-famed character "Sherlock Holmes," comes to the Lyceum theater Wednesday and Thursday Nov. 1 and 2. The play has been writ ten by William Gillette in connection with the gifted novelist, A. Conan Doyle, who has won fame by his brilliant stories of tective life. It is founded on his widely read and most spirited and discussed sketches of Sherlock Holmes. In the story of the book he cpened a new field of literature and introduced new locale, ew types and an entire new atmosphere to the world of letters. What A. Conan Doyle did in literature, William Gillette has now done for the stage, and in "Sherlock Holmes' Mr. Gillette has retained all the characters so well known, and has been compelled to introduce a love story which he calls "A hitherto unpublished episode in the career of the great detective, showing his connection with the strange case of Miss Faulkner." The drama is in four acts The scenes are laid in and around Lor

Manager Charles Probman has spared neither time nor expense in giving a suitable mounting to this play, and after its production in our city it will be taken to the Garrick theater, New York, for an all winter's run, and will be produced at the Duke of York's theater, London, Eng land, next spring for an indefinite run. A strong company is employed in the sentation of this piece. The princi-s are: William Gillette, Bruce McRae.
